

Discover and Share the Story of the Ancient Southwest

Aztec Ruins National Monument (NM) (www.nps.gov/azru) has an interesting, challenging, and fun summer opportunity for an energetic volunteer or volunteers with their own RV. This volunteer ranger position shares the story of the ancient Southwest with people from around the world and around a RV Park. The volunteer ranger(s) meet and greet people as they arrive at a visitor center, rove the park grounds and tell people about the areas rich history, and assist in a variety of projects at the park. In addition, the volunteer rangers will share the story of this place and other nearby national parks with tourists at the Desert Rose RV Resort.

The position will last 18 to 20 weeks, between late April and early September, 32-hours per week. Approximately 24 hours each week the volunteer will be at Aztec Ruins National Monument, and another 8 hours they will serve at the Desert Rose RV Resort located ten miles south of the monument in Bloomfield, New Mexico. The monument will pay for the volunteer's site rental, including hookups, and provide $7/day to cover transportation expenses to and from the monument.
